A Note from the Khan Kids

Dear Friends,

Moving to a new school or neighborhood can be challenging for anyone. For families moving to a whole new country, it can be especially difficult. You miss your family and old friends and have so much to learn about your community, school, and teachers. It can be scary and lonely adjusting to a new place, but the way people welcome you makes all the difference!

At first some neighbors and classmates didn't understand our customs. The way we looked and dressed was different. But we were patient and soon met others who showed us around, invited us to eat with them, and suggested we join a club that promoted international understanding. When the club took on a project to honor the diversity in our town, the first "Community Day" was launched – and we were "excited to serve" and celebrate its success!

If you see someone new in your neighborhood or at school, reach out and be a friend. Invite them to hang out, play on a team, eat lunch, or join a club. We guarantee you'll be glad you did...we were!

Best to you,

Rima and Bassem

Who's Who?

Being new in a new place means learning new names.

DIRECTIONS: Match the characters in the story with their descriptions.

Samin and Lina	Mr. Cortes	Rima	City Manager
Mrs. George	Hailey	Bassem	Mrs. O'Conner

	Description	Who am I?
1	"I'm an older woman who lives next door to the new neighbors. I'm not sure I will like them, but discover how lucky I am they moved next to me!"
2	"I'm the principal at Rima and Bassem's school. I think Community Day is a terrific idea!"
3	"I explain the meaning of my hijab – or head covering – to some girls at my new school."
4	"Our parents moved from Syria. We met in college, married, and now live in the United States."
5	"I help Rima and Bassem find their way around school. We have history class together, and I encouraged them to join the service club."
6	"I teach history and think it's important for students to understand that our country is enriched because it has so many different cultures!"
7	"My sister and I replanted Mrs. George's garden."
8	"I helped students fill out the forms and permits required by the city to help make Community Day as successful as possible."

3...2...1...Volunteer!

A “volunteer” is someone who offers to do something for no pay. The reward is helping others! Volunteering is an important part of being an adult, but students of all ages can find ways to help.

Rami's Advice

Rami's been asked to write an advice column for the school newspaper. What would Rami tell this student?

Dear Rami,

When family moved here one year ago, I did not speak any English. I've been studying and practicing, and I speak better now. But I still have an accent when I speak, and I have a hard time making friends because I am shy. I'm afraid kids will make fun of my accent and my mistakes. What can I do to make friends?

Signed,
Still Learning

Dear Still Learning,

Your friend,
Rami
